

"Cold Cash" JONES

They called him "Cold Cash" Jones. He always carried it with him. Paid on the spot. Didn't believe in new-fangled checks and short cuts.

Then two things happened. The first didn't cure him, but the second did. First, he lost his "roll" with $51 in it. He could never figure whether it was his own clumsy fingers or the light fingers of a purse-snatcher.

Right on top of this experience, he was called upon to pay a bill he knew he had already paid. But he had nothing to prove it.

Jones got "mad" at that. Today he "totes" a check book. Says he saves money and trouble.

REINFORCING SAFETY CAMPAIGN.

"The Keystone Automobile Club welcomes the reinforcements rushing to the firing line in the battle to end the national disgrace of highway deaths and injuries, and offers its fullest cooperation to any and all agencies working in the interests of highway safety," said Edward P. Curran, Safety Director of the Club, in pledging Keystone's aid in the safety movement.

"Accidents on the highways have reached most shocking proportions, and it will require the united efforts of all citizens to successfully combat the tide of recklessness responsible for this condition. Motor vehicles can be driven safely. 'Accidents' in the true sense of the word are few in comparison to the number of casualties.

"It is not an 'accident' when a motorist, intent on 'beating' a traffic signal, runs down a pedestrian at a street crossing. Neither is the element of 'accident' present when a driver passes another car on a curve or near the crest of a hill and crashes into a vehicle operated in accordance with the rules of the road.

"There is little of 'accident' in a crash which follows headstrong exercise of the mythical right of way, and there is even less excuse to attribute to 'accident' deaths and injuries resulting from high-speed operation where every consideration of safety demands low speed and careful driving.

"Thus, it is apparent that the motor vehicle in reckless hands is a dangerous weapon. In careful hands it is as safe as old Dobbin. Competent driving is the need of the hour. When we get it, we'll have licked the 'accident' problem."

PROMISE AND FULFILLMENT.

Some months ago a business man agreed to do certain things. Today it is possible to paraphrase his words in the following manner: "I am going to give work to the heads of about 500,000 families. Those who work for me directly will be given steady employment at not less than $6 a day, and will receive wages totalling over $140,000,000. Those indirectly employed in supplying materials worth $500,000,000 will receive $300,000,000 in wages."

He might have continued, and said: "The industry of which I am a part will spend about $400,000,000 in wages directly, and about $850,000,000 more will be created as a result of $1,500,000,000 purchase of materials. In my own particular case, when that money has been spent and that employment given, a million persons will have new automobiles of my make. For the group as a whole, 2,925,000 new automobiles will be in use."

So, in effect, spoke the business man. He said he would build a million automobiles in a year, and he built them in ten months. At approximately the same time a gentleman in Washington said his department would, before November 1, give work to about 3,500,000 people, but he did not promise a $6 a day minimum wage. As a matter of fact, he is still far from his goal a month after the promised completion.

And now the same gentleman criticizes business men for not contributing more to recovery. But the Washington gentleman did do something—he distributed about 120,000,000 headaches among the taxpayers.

NEW DENTAL DISCOVERY

Permits Work on Teeth Without Pain or Discomfort.

Discovery of a substance which makes the dentist's drill a painless instrument, something millions of persons the world over have been hoping for, was announced last Thursday by Columbia University.

The new substance, which it was said, "will revolutionize the practice of dentistry," was discovered after 20 years of research by Dr. Leroy L. Hartman, Professor of Dentistry in the Columbia University School of Dental and Oral Surgery.

Dr. Hartman's achievement, it was asserted, has been the goal of hundreds of dental research workers since the practice of dentistry began. The substance, described as a "desensitizer," is as yet without an official name, is a solution applied to the surface of the tooth. It not only prevents pain, it was said, "but offers the possibility of saving teeth now lost through extraction."

Dr. Willard C. Rappleye, dean of the Columbia Faculty of Medicine, characterized Dr. Hartman's work as "one of the most outstanding contributions to the practice of dentistry."

The desensitizer, Dr. Hartman revealed, is based on a new theory of pain and the recognition of a previously unknown substance in the dentine of the teeth.

Full details of the discovery cannot be made public, the announcement says, until patent negotiations are completed. Patent assigned by Dr. Hartman to Columbia University, to be handled by University Patent, Inc.

Dr. Hartman said that the quality and the price of the chemical would be controlled by the university to make it available for general use and to prevent the exploitation of the public. The product will be made available commercially in the near future.

According to the old theories of dental pain, solutions were forced into the pulp, or nerves, of the tooth to be drilled, or attempts were made to block the nerve supply to the tooth.

Under his new theory, Dr. Hartman desensitizes the outer part of the tooth, establishing a localized zone which reduces the sensations communicated to the pulp.

The new chemical is a liquid applied to the dentine of the tooth and left in contact from one to one and a half minutes. It is effective for twenty minutes to an hour, during which time virtually any cavity may be prepared for filling, Dr. Hartman said. It has been tested and found successful on nearly 500 cases in the clinics of the Columbia Dental School on which other methods "produced almost unbearable pain," he said.

The desensitizer causes no after effects, while laboratory tests have proved that the pulp of the tooth remains normal and healthy after its use. It is "so simple to use," he added, "that the patient is not aware of its application, and the length of time for the operation is considerably reduced."

Experimentation which brought about the perfection of the desensitizer was conducted entirely on human beings, Dr. Hartman said. Solutions were applied on volunteer subjects in the dental school clinics to determine the exact strength necessary for use.
