(The following is a small portion of a big news article about Berthoud. I am only transcribing the bio part).

In the following columns we are pleased to give the pictures and personal sketches of a number of the people who assisted in making this beautiful and prosperous county what it is:

J.H. Welty

Among those who have taken advantage of every opportunity to make farming successful in its various branches is J.H. Welty. It is often remarked of him that whatever he touches turns to money. Mr. Welty came to Berthoud before much rural development had been made.

He was born near Tipton, Cedar County, Iowa. September 2, 1857. He was one of six children, among whom are Mrs. W.E. Bader, Mrs. A.A. Knott and G.F. Welty, all prominent people hereabout. His boyhood days were spent on his father's farm. By the way, his father was Henry Welty, who also came to Colorado in the fall of 1878. Jake went to Illinois in company with A.A. Knott and Crawford McKee, making the trip overland. From there they came to Sumner County, Kansas. Mr. Welty took up land and got a deed for it, and after two years he drove through to Colorado and settled near Longmont. He was employed as a farm hand on the George Zweck Ranch on the St. Vrain River. In the meantime he made a trip to Buffalo, Wyoming, with a bunch of cattle for his employer. It was in 1885 that he bought his home quarter section of Dr. Chase. There was one little scrubby tree and a dugout upon it. The house was claimed to be haunted, and considerable excitement propelled about the time over reports of ghosts seen. For three years he kept "bachelor's hall", after which his sister came out and kept house for him several years. In 1889 he bought the quarter section adjoining him on the west.

On September 24, 1891, Mr. Welty was married to Miss Augusta Zweck, daughter of his former employee. Mrs. Welty was born and raised in Colorado. Her father came to the state in 1859. He built the Zweck Hotel at Longmont and was third partner in the Prussian mine at Gold Hill.

Their wedding trip was to eastern Iowa and lasted six weeks. They have one child whose name is Roy Virgil, born February 13, 1896.

Mr. Welty owns altogether about 790 acres of land. He purchased Cliff Cottage Stock Farm in the mountain in partnership with W.C. Stiles. He stocked the ranch with sheep and cattle, now owning about 100 head of branded cattle. About 1890 he began feeding sheep. He and Mr. Knott were about the first to engage in the industry here. For the last three years Mr. Welty has raised lambs as an experiment and says he knows of no other business that pays better, owing to the value of the land. Last winter Mr. and Mrs. Welty took a trip to California, visiting Los Angeles, Santa Barbara and Sacramento, returning by way of Ogden and Salt Lake City in Utah, and arriving home February 21st.

The History of Berthoud, Larimer County, Colorado

Little Thompson

The Rich Valley that Surround the Town of Berthoud.
Old Times - Putting in Water Works - Organizing of the Town - Milling and Elevator Facilities - Growth Owing to Improved Means of Farming and Intelligent Farmers.

(The following is from The Fort Collins Express "Industrial Edition," issued in 1892, and is so well to the point we thought best to see it for The Bulletin's "Pioneer Edition.")

The Little Thompson valley received its settlers in 1860; they were transients who came in to raise a little hay, and but a few stayed. Among those who did remain after the first year were Louis Cross and Major Kerr, but both of these gentlemen have been gathered in by the great Reaper. The Overland Stage Line kept a station along the creek for the exchange of horses and gathering of hay and other need of the company, but the early history of the little valley like its later prosperity, is very closely cemented to the larger Thompson.

The Little Thompson is not a very large stream and most of the water it furnished was very soon taken charge of by the owners of stock ranches and farms lying just inside the hills or at the point where the stream passes out to the plains. The Cary Culver and Lawrence Stock farms are almost as well known as any in the west, and there are others about them owned by capitalists of Boulder and Arapahoe Counties that will some day be as famous as there.

When Colorado Central Railroad was built in 1877 the station was named Berthoud in honor of E.L. Berthoud, chief engineer of the road, and station house and a section house added to the burg which had formerly consisted of Mr. Cross' farm building and a public school.

In 1876 Peter Turner moved to the land lying on the bluff just north of the bottom. He and his two boys the set to work to prepare the land for cultivation. There was much talk of ditches to be constructed from the Big Thompson to cover the country lying between the two steams, and Mr. Turner and his boys selected a site as near the coming road as possible and one that would be surely under the new ditch. There was not a house on the bluff at that time, and only one habitation, a dug out, in the neighborhood. Water was carried from the Little Thompson, or, in drier times, from the Big Thompson. Little was done or could be done, until the completion of the Handy and Home Supply canals early in the eighties. Then in 1884, the present site of the town was platted, and the railway station was moved up. Soon after the Colorado Milling & Elevator Company erected a large elevator. This gave the farmers of the section an opportunity to ship all their products without crossing the Big Thompson bottom, which was sometimes in an almost impassable condition. With the increase of business a neat little town speedily sprung up and stepped into a large trade.

A Great Section.

The natural resources of the county around the station are great, situated as it is in the midst of the largest wheat growing section in the state, and the one claimed to be the best in the county. Immense crops of wheat come to be speedily the rule, as the class of men that had settled on the farms were away above average. Intelligence on the farm is as much at a premium as in any other calling.

Good water was one of the first anxieties of the residents, and in 1877 a pipe was laid to a lake about a mile and three quarters north of town and all residences supplied. A force was obtained for fire purposes sufficient to protect any building in town.

In the spring of the following year it was found that the population had increased to such a number as to warrant incorporation. The agitation led to the organization being perfected during the summer; on September 15, 1885, the first town board met to consider the affairs of the Bailiwick of Berthoud. F.I. Davis was mayor and the trustees were Peter Turner, L.H. Kelly, F.A. Crane, John Y. Munson, M.A. Rowen and Andrew Fairbairn. A. Fairbairn was elected clerk and L.H. Kelly treasurer. At this first meeting propositions were presented for buying a hose cart and for the purchase of the system of water supply. The purchases were made as soon as the town taxes were in hand and thus, at the very start, all the modern improvements were at hand for the citizens.

Farmers Mill

The large Farmers' Mill has always been an immense advantage. By reason of its presence the farmers have invariably received the highest market price for their grain, and have been able to sell at times when at no other place was there any such prospect. This of course owing to the rivalry between the mill and the Colorado Milling & Elevator Company's offers, but the farmers have reaped the advantage.

Schools

In schools, Berthoud has always been abreast of the progress in the country, which is and always has been well advanced, in educational facilities. Hardly was the town started when building was commenced on the lot set apart for the high school, and so large was the structure made that the district has not yet outgrown it.

Intelligence Has Advantage

Let the visitor to the Little Thompson Valley go along the road past the fields and converse for a time with their owners and he will be convinced that the intelligent farmer has as much advantage in this world as the intelligent professional man. Ten years ago the land was a waste, or when cultivated was done so carelessly as to be detrimental to both the owner and the soil. Now pleasant lanes lined with large cottonwood trees, large and roomy farm houses sitting back in groves and orchards - a smiling land dimpled with happy homes.

Better yet there is no indication that the valley is in danger of a backward step. The careful farmer seems never to reach the point where further progress in his march is not possible. His land may yield thirty bushels this year, but he thinks he can make it do better next and in many cases he does. Think of a tract of over one hundred acres that averages thirty-five bushels, and a sixty acre tract which yields fifty bushels per acre, and then imagine a farmer who believes he can beat even that, then you will form an estimate of what the brainy go-ahead agriculturists of the Little Thompson are like.

The forgoing was written of Berthoud and vicinity in 1892, but since then we have advanced.

The town has put in a complete drainage and sewer system.

The water is the very best. The mills, elevators, stores and shops are right up to date. Excellent schools and churches. The streets are wide and clean, there are shade and fruit trees in abundance, and each street has its stone walks.

The farms are being divided into smaller tracts and better farming is the result. Fruit raising has become popular and very profitable. There is an abundance of water for irrigation purposes.

The farmers of this district fattened 55,000 head of lambs last season for the eastern markets. The citizens of town and country are well-to-do and progressive.

The culture of sugar beets is a new enterprise and apparently will be a very profitable one for the farmer.

Location of Berthoud, 54 miles north of Denver, on the Colorado & Southern Railway, in Larimer County. Six miles from the mountains.

Prices of town and farm property are yet very reasonable, but advances are being made rapidly in all directions.

In the following columns we are pleased to give the pictures and personal sketches of a number of the people who assisted in making this beautiful and prosperous county what it is.

NOTE - You can find these sketches in the Larimer County Archives page. Under 1901 Berthoud Bio's.

List of 209 Young Men Who Registered Last Week

On June 5 the young men of the county who had reached the age of 21 were called upon to register for the draft and in response to this call 209 answered the questions put to them by the war department thru the registration board.

The list of these young men is given below and it furnishes interesting reading to the people of the county.

Many well known names are included in the list but the outstanding feature is the fact that these boys have reached the age of 21. Many people know these young men _____ boys and the registration for service shows that they have passed the _____ high school and "_____ youth" stage. They are listed for places in the Army either in the line or behind it to help put the Kaiser out of _____.

The numbers given herewith were given indiscriminately by the local board but later the war department will advise as to the numbers which will be used in inducting the young men into service.
