Land could be taken up any where their was gov land subject to private entry. Not assignable, but inheritable by widow. Her heirs not illegible.	No bordering patent owners in 1854. In 1859 Robert T Ready becomes bordering land owner. This is probably Jacob Tarwater, son of Lewis, because he would have been the better age for military service. The only thing I can figure is that since 1859 is just before the time of both Jacob Tarwater's deaths, perhaps the lawyers for his estate were in Quincey?? Or maybe some of his heirs were based there?
