Joseph next married Marie Marguerite Sulliere on 2 Nov 1823 in Buffalo, NY.⁸

3. Josette Paquin was born about 1785.

General Notes: It has been difficult to determine the parentage of Josette Paquin.

Her parents' names are not listed in the marriage record of Josette and Joseph Boisclair, although Joseph's parents are named. Looking at Paquin families that resided in Louiseville, Que, the site of the marriage, the most likely parents seemed to be Francois Paquin (son of Francois and Marie Anne Gregoire) and Marie Louise Trottier Desruisseaux Pombert (PRDH family # 63680). However, a marriage for this Josephpte was found in Louiseville in 1810 to Basile Racine, and so she is ruled out.

Josette married Joseph Beriault Boisclair on 12 Jan 1807 in Louiseville, Quebec.⁵

General Notes: PRDH shows baptism at St-Jacques, v. Dieppe, archev. Rouen, Normandie (ar. Dieppe, Seine-Maritime)

LaForest: baptism at church of St-Ignace, Dieppe. v. 11 p. 43

LaForest v. 11 p. 43-51:

Emigrated about 1653. Signed contract 25 April 1654 with Paul Chalifour, who taught him carpentry and paid him 60 livres after the 2nd and last year of his apprenticeship. He was promised room and board until 20 March 1657.

After receiving his credential of competence in carpentry, he needed to supplement his income by farming, so he applied to Jean de Lauzon, Grand Senechal of New France, for a grant of land in the fief of Lotinville.

He was ceded a tract of land measuring 3 arpents in frontage on the river, near the present church of L'Ange Gardien. Here Abraham built a cabin and cleared the land. He lived his whole life on this parcel.

Jean de Lauzon was killed by Iroquois in 1661, and the fief passed into the hands of Bertrand Chenay de la Garenne on 30 Aug 1664. Now Abraham paid his seigneurial rents to this new owner.

Abraham worked for 10 years in this country before signing a marriage contract on 30 Nov 1663 with Denise Savard, daughter of Simon Savard and Marie Hourdouille. An earlier contract mentioned Abraham doing carpentry work for Simon Savard, so this might be how the couple met. On this document, Abraham's parents are listed as Abraham and Catherine Labrecque.

PRDH shows 12 children in this family, born between 1665 and 1688.

La Forest has 14 children in this family: 6 daughters: Anne, Genevieve, Marie Madeleine, Marie, Marguerite, Denise, and 8 sons: Jean-Baptist, Joseph, Denis, Francois, Michel, Charles, Louis, and Francois. Jean-Baptiste was baptised at Chateau-Richer, but later children were baptised at L'Ange Gardien, after the parish was established in 1670.

The Fisets provided dowries for all their daughters, even going into debt to make up a dowry of 50 livres for Marie-Madeleine; giving 100 livres for Anne and 200 for Denise, who also was provided with "one mother cow".

Abraham Fiset was hospitalized at Hotel Dieu in Quebec on 5 April 1694 for ten days. He lived 6 more years, until 23 Dec 1700.

Notary Etienne Jacob began a property inventory on 26 Jan 1701 in the presence of the widow, Denise Savard. However, by July 1704, the record of the Sovereign Council shows that she too had passed away.

The details of the 1701 inventory show that the Fisets were relatively prosperous for that time. Their property consisted of 50 arpents in plowed land, prairie and pasture. The house measured 36 feet long and 18 feet wide. The barn was 30 feet long and 20 feet wide; the stable 20 feet by 20 feet.

Boisclair Ancestors

They owned 1 plow, 2 axes, 2 guns, 8 sickles. Animals included 1 mare, 1 heifer, 2 calves, 3 cows, 4 oxen, 4 pigs, 11 hens and 1 rooster. The farm produced wheat, barley and oats.

Son Charles bought the farm from his brothers and sisters, which had been equally divided, as was the custom. In the second generation, several members of the family settled in the vicinity of Portneuf, at Neuville.
