

Source Citation: Woods, Edgar Rev. History of Albemarle County, Virginia: The Michie Company, Printers, 1901. (The history of Albemarle County, Virginia, A description of the founding and events of this Virginia county including narratives on its residents families from 1727-1890.)

Eades – Citations in History of Albemarle Co., VA

CITATION: History of Albemarle County, Virginia, Page 126

Rev. John Ramsay, who in 1759 purchased from Jacob Eades three hundred acres of land on the south fork of Totier. It is judged from his will, which is on record, that he died in 1770. He left his whole estate to his wife Barbara, who the same year sold the land on Totier to Abraham Eades, Jr.

CITATION: History of Albemarle County, Virginia, Page 367

Abraham Eades was one of many citizens of Albemarle County such as Thomas Jefferson to sign a Declaration of Independence, on April 21st, 1779, the original of which is preserved in the rooms of the Virginia Historical Society in Richmond.

CITATION: History of Albemarle County, Virginia, Page 56

After the war many emigrated to Georgia, but a far greater number hastened to fix their abodes on the fertile lands of the West, especially the blue grass region of Kentucky. For a time the practice was prevalent on the part of those expecting to change their domicile, of applying to the County Court for a formal recommendation of character, and certificates were given, declaring them to be honest men and good citizens. Among those who were thus commended to the people of Georgia, were James Marks, one of the magistrates, Abraham Eades and others

CITATION: History of Albemarle County, Virginia, Page 59

At this village (Warren, VA), was located another Tobacco Warehouse called Nicholas's, which in the early part of the century shipped about as many hogsheads as Henderson's. The first inspectors were Clifton Garland, Abraham Eades, Samuel Childress, Robert Moorman and John T. Holman. Beyond these enterprises Warren never made much progress.

CITATION: History of Albemarle County, Virginia, Page 401

Abraham Eades listed in Appendix, No. 9 Necrology as dying in Albermarle Co., VA in 1828.