WELCOME

Hello Everyone;

Welcome to the Spring 2012 issue of the Dellinger, Knecht, Pfeffer, Silar (DKPS) family newsletter. I've included you on my mailing list because you are someone who shares a common interest of searching for information on the surnames associated with my paternal family line. I hope that some of the topics addressed within this newsletter will assist you with your genealogical endeavors.

This issue's Feature Article is about my Gardner, Hayes, Jacobs, and Knecht ancestors. second part of an ongoing series of articles about my "brick wall families". Within the News of Interest to the Family Historian look for articles about the new Pennsylvania, Church and Town Records, 1708-1985 record collection at Ancestry.com. The BOYER surname is featured in the Surname Search section. "Surname Search" displays matches of a surname in our database to the huge resources found RootsWeb.com. Check out the Research Connections section to see if anyone else is researching your family or a similar surname. You are also reminded to take time to look at the new and revised web pages and image galleries recently uploaded to the Maternal and Paternal Ancestors Website at RootsWeb's Freepages. Included here are pages containing worthwhile information about individual surnames, ancestral locations, historic American roads and migration routes, as well as other topics such as military units, our genealogy reference book library, and free genealogy records. Check out our DKPS Databases at the RootsWeb World Connect Project and Ancestry.com to see if we've added any new ancestral family lines, or individual records that may be of interest to you.

As always I will attempt to keep the newsletter brief but informative and hope you will enjoy reading it. If you do not wish to remain on the mailing list please let me know and I will stop sending it to you. To read my previous newsletters, see the link in the Contact Information section of this issue.

FEATURE ARTICLE

My Brick Wall Families, Part 2: Gardner; Hayes; Jacobs; Knecht

Searching for ancestors is easy and rewarding when we first embarked upon the enjoyable task of finding the history of our family. We all love the excitement of filling in the blanks in your family tree and adding generation after generation to your genealogy software files. However, if you research long enough, you'll run into an ancestor who represents a dead end in your tree. We family historians call this a "brick wall." Even if a brick wall may is a small problem or a much larger one you begin to believe that every avenue of research has been exhausted and as a result you are totally frustrated and at a loss.

When I hit a "brick wall" I usually like to write an email to one of my gencousins or other genealogy friends. My usual method is to write down as much background information I know and then thoroughly explain my problem as well as what I'd like to accomplish. This exercise is quite therapeutic in that the act of explaining my brick wall to someone who is unfamiliar with it causes me to look at the problem in a new light. Additional bonuses to this approach are that I make connections that I never made before and think of new avenues to pursue.

So I got to thinking about how I could expand my technique to include more than one or two persons at a time. As the readers of this newsletter are aware I always include the "Research Connections" as a part of every edition because we all realize the importance of a forum for researchers to reach out to others who may be working on the same family. Because most of the readers of this letter share several surnames in my database I believe that we would benefit from the publishing of my "brick walls". Therefore I decided to circulate the narratives I've composed on several of my "one generation" family lines. I believe that this technique will ultimately benefit many of us in that we may find information to add to or correct our existing research such as making connections through known spouses, or even finding out more about ancestral locations that I've identified. Either way I'm sure that additional points of view about how to deal with these problem ancestors will be most beneficial.

GARDNER

Only one generation of this family line has been identified. The direct descendent is my 6th great-grandmother Mary Gardner born around 1747. If indeed Mary's family is of German origin the surname may have been spelled differently such as Gartner, the other similar forms. The location of Mary's birth is not known but it is probable that she spent most if not all of her life in York County, Pennsylvania. Mary married Philip Jacobs sometime before 1769 when her first known child Anna Margaretta Jacobs, my 5th great-grandmother, was born. Mary and Philip Jacobs apparently lived in that part of York County known today as Lower Windsor Township.

HAYES

Very little is known about the Hayes Family line. The focal point for this lineage is my 2nd great-grandmother Sarah Hayes who was born 1847 in York County, Pennsylvania and married William Henry Silar. The couple had thirteen children of which 12 are known of at this time. Sarah lived her life in York County, where she died in 1917 at age 70 years.

Census records show that Sarah's father was born in England as such one may assume that he immigrated to America sometime in the first half of the nineteenth century prior to the birth of his first known child in 1843. There is speculation that his name may be William, born c. 1809, the son of Abraham (born c.1774) and Hannah (born c.1778) Hayes. Immigration records show this family arriving in Philadelphia, March 31, 1828. They traveled from Liverpool aboard the "Governor Douglass". Other members of this family group appear to be daughters Eliza (born c.1812) and Phoebe (born c.1819), sons Oliver (born c.1800) and the aforementioned William. Also traveling with this group was another William Hayes (born c.1789) who may be Abraham's younger brother. The family of Sarah Hayes, mother of the Sarah, is found living in Lower Chanceford Township in 1850. Grandfather Haves is absent from this household. Based upon his absence and the fact that he has a child listed as age one it is most probable that he passed away sometime around 1848. Other information that may lend some credence to the speculation as to the name and origin of Grandfather Hayes is the fact that his eldest son was named Abraham (born c.1844) thus could have been named after the Abraham Hayes the father of William Hayes. There is little or no evidence to link William Hayes to the area of southeastern Pennsylvania except his brother Oliver Hayes, born c. 1805 in England, and living in Chester County, Pennsylvania in 1850.

JACOBS

Anna Margaretta Jacobs was born 1769 in York County. It is believed that she is the daughter of Philip Jacobs and Mary Gartner (Gardner). This Jacobs family may be descendents of any of the Jacobs families who emigrated from Germany to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania in the first half of the 18th century*. Of particular interest are the Jacobs who immigrated in 1738. The family of a Philip Jacobs, born c. 1696 arrived on September 9, 1738 at Philadelphia, on the ship "Glasgow". Hans Jakob Jacob, born 1722, who is presumed to be his son, is also listed on this passenger list. Michael Jacob, born c. 1718 also arrived in the same year and may be another son. This Philip Jacobs could be the grandfather of the aforementioned Anna Margaretta and her brother Phillip Jacobs. 1738 arrival was a Christoph Wendel Jacoby who was imported in the ship "Nancy and Friendship." This person may be the same Christopher Jacob listed in the 1800 census as living in York County. Around 1788 Anna Margaretta married George Abel a native of Windsor Township. Anna gave birth to ten known children between 1789 and 1811. Research in the 1790 census shows a Philip Jacobs in Windsor Township, who is most likely a brother of Anna Margaretta. Also in close proximity to the aforementioned Phillip Jacobs is the household of George Abel (Abell)

KNECHT

I have traced my Knecht family line back to my third great-grandfather Frederick Knecht, Sr. born 1840 in Germany. He immigrated to the United States in 1873 and settled in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. He eventual became a naturalized citizen of the United States. second great-grandfather Frederick Knecht. Jr. was born 1859 in the area of Germany formerly known as Prussia. In 1873, when he was 14 years old he immigrated to the United States with his father and mother. In 1880 his parents filed a Declaration of Intent to become a citizen of the United States. 1900 Frederick had become a naturalized United States citizen in Pennsylvania. My great-grandmother Elizabeth was Frederick's eldest child. She was born in Philadelphia during 1878. Elizabeth married Frederick Pfeffer circa 1896. Her life was short as she passed away at age 25 in 1903.

Great places to look for FREE genealogy records

Overwhelmed by the number of family history-related Web sites popping up? The folks at FamilyTreeMagazine have taken the time to sort through them to bring us the best. As a result they have recently identified the following worthwhile websites:

OK/IT GenWeb:

Also under the USGenWeb umbrella, this site stands out in part because it's no ordinary state page: It's dedicated to the "twin territories," Oklahoma and Indian Territory, and exists in addition to a strictly Oklahoma site. As a result, it's of interest to researchers with any number of American Indian heritages. Packed with links to related tribes, the site also is home to special projects, including migrations, "removals," timelines, trails and roads, the 1900 census and 1903 postal routes.

Massachusetts Archives:

http://www.sec.state.ma.us/arc/

A triple threat, this site's Massachusetts Archives database, spanning 1629 to 1799, is just the beginning. The vital records database spans 1841 to 1915. And the in-progress project to index more than 1 million arrivals through the port of Boston from 1848 to 1891.

Missouri Digital Heritage:

www.sos.mo.gov/archives/resources/resources.asp

If you're seeking military records, naturalization documents, photographs or land patents, this is the place to start if you have Missouri kin.

Wisconsin Historical Society:

http://www.wisconsinhistory.org/genealogy/

Search the Wisconsin Genealogy Index for more than 150,000 Wisconsin obituaries and biographical sketches, 1 million births, 400,000 deaths and 1 million marriages. You also can milk this site for Dairy State images, Civil War records and history articles.

RootsWeb Removes its Free SSDI Database

One of the free online resources we've recommended search the Social Security Death Index (SSDI) has been taken offline. RootsWeb's SSDI database is no longer available, with a message that: "Due to sensitivities around the information in this database, the Social Security Death Index collection is not available on our free Rootsweb service but is accessible to search on Ancestry.com."

The SSDI is a database of deaths reported to the Social Security Administration, for the most part since 1962. Now a subscription is required to use Ancestry.com's version of the SSDI.

In addition this disappointing news you will find that Social Security numbers aren't provided for deaths within the past 10 years. You might think genealogists wouldn't be concerned with such a recent death, but someone who died in 2002 might've been born in 1920, and his or her application for an SSN (called an SS-5) could name parents born in the 1800s. Plus, the SSDI is useful for tracing family lines forward in time to find distant cousins.

We say NO WAY!! to charging a fee to access the Social Security Death Index. You can still get it for FREE from our DEATH RECORDS webpage at: http://tinyurl.com/8x7m44r

Pennsylvania, Church and Town Records, 1708-1985

The Historical Society of Pennsylvania (HSP) has partnered with Ancestry.com, the world's largest online family history resource, to make their collection more accessible to researchers. As part of this partnership, Ancestry.com has digitized more than 7.5 million Pennsylvania vital records from HSP's collection, including church, cemetery, and undertaker records from every county in the state from 1708 through 1985. All of these records are available online for free for members of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, visitors to HSP's library at 1300 Locust Street in Philadelphia, and Ancestry.com subscribers.

The documents in this database are primarily Protestant church records from congregations in Pennsylvania, but there are additional sources as well, including funeral homes, cemeteries, newspapers, historical societies, and personal records, among others. The documents list millions of names, and many contain details on vital events such as births, marriages, and deaths.

Some "Good News" submitted by our Readers

I wanted to pass this link http://tinyurl.com/8a7k2e5> to the Voegtly Cemetery, Pittsburgh, PA on to you in case you haven't seen it before. I think it could be very valuable to German decendants from Pennsylvania. Submitted by ROBIN COLES at miscoles@gmail.com>

JUNE GROVE rnklbrogue@yahoo.com has notified us that on December 15, 2011, Pennsylvania
Governor Tom Corbett approved a bill to provide for public access to certain birth and death certificates after a fixed amount of time has passed. This legislation provides that such documents become public records 105 years after the date of birth or 50 years after the date of death. Now you may have online access to the birth indices or death indices. The links to the aforementioned indices as well as guidelines for

Research Courses

Learn About the Methods and Key Resources Needed to Jump-Start Your Family History Research

Stuck at brick wall, or feeling overwhelmed by your research? Then it is probably time to time to increase your skill set by educating yourself. Once understanding of records and research planning is acquired we become better researchers. This means we are more selective in what we gather, more confident that we can find information again, and better equipped to scale our brick walls. To assist you with this effort we have included this "Research Courses" article as an ongoing feature of this newsletter. Although there are many sources for FREE online genealogy lessons we have decided to start with those tried and proven courses offered by Family Search that can be seen at: https://familysearch.org/learningcenter/home.html.

These classes are taught by genealogy research consultants from the Family History Library in Salt Lake City, Utah, as well as experts from around the world. Below you will find information about the featured lesson. Click on the URL to get the lesson started.

Germany Beginning Research Series Lesson 2: Learn about Historical Background

This lesson will help you understand the development of Germany during the 15th through 21st Centuries and how major historical events may have affected your ancestors' lives. You will be introduced to the concept of using

RESEARCH CONNECTIONS

Since the first issue of this newsletter was created its distribution list has grown significantly. Along the way we have interacted with many genealogists that have expressed an interest in one or more of the family lines contained within our DKPS databases located at RootsWeb and Ancestry.com. Because networking is a key to the success of any family historian we feel that it is important for this newsletter to help in making that connection. As a result "Research Connections" has become part of every edition because we all realize the importance of a forum for researchers to reach out to others who may be working on the same family.

Since most of the readers of this letter share several surnames in the DKPS databases we believe that we would all benefit from the publishing of your significant "brick wall".

New Subscribers Seeking Assistance With their Research

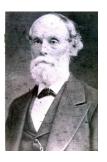

I have just found out that I have grandparents by the name of Haas. My GG grandmother was Louisa Hass who married John Anderson Ward. She was the daughter of Albert Gallatin Haas. They lived in the Lawrence County, Arkansas area in the late 1800s. Any information about this family would be greatly appreciated.

LOOKING FOR MR. KNECHT OF PHILADELPHIA

Did you by chance have a KNECHT ancestor who came to the Warren/Halifax Co area of NC from Philadelphia about 1830-1835 to help build a railroad? My husband's Irish ancestor came with him and stayed here. Mr. Knecht evidently went back "home" to Philadelphia after a few years. To right is a photo of him as an older man and one of him visiting my husband's ancestor in later years also. Submitted by SHIRLEY PITCHFORD at < spitchford@centurylink.net >
