A QUOTE TO NOTE

"If you would not be forgotten, as soon as you are dead and rotten; Either write things worthy of reading, or do things worthy of writing." -- Benjamin Franklin

FEATURE ARTICLE

A Cavalcade of Ancestral Events

Our Maternal family ancestors are, for the most part, "Scotch-Irish" and English in origin. Most if not all of our family arrived in America prior to the Revolutionary War. The Scotch-Irish have always been known as fiery and restless people. It seems that they were perpetually on the move in an effort to find "greener pastures" or to quote Daniel Boone, more "elbow room." There are no great or famous persons within this family tree. Most supported their families through farming and stock-raising. Some were lawyers, teachers and preachers. On the whole they were pretty much just "regular folks".

Many of our great-grandfathers and mothers witnessed or played an integral part in some of the great and remarkable events that shaped the development of America during the past 380 years.

Our 9th great-grandfather Michael Pauluszen (Michael son of Paul), was born circa 1610 in Flanders. He came to America as a young man sometime prior to 1640 and settled at New Amsterdam the 17th-century Dutch colonial settlement that served as the capital of New Netherland. Giles Carter landed in Virginia circa 1653 as an indentured servant. In 1677, then a landowner in Henrico county, Giles was intimately involved with Colonel James Crewes in the historic event called Bacon's Rebellion.

During the American Revolution. Hannah (Bracken) Bishop protected her family bible by sitting on it as she watched Tories burn down her South Abraham Eades was one of many Carolina home. citizens of Albemarle County such as Thomas Jefferson and his brother Randolph Jefferson to sign the Albemarle County Declaration of Independence, on April 21st, 1779, the original of which is preserved in the rooms of the Virginia Historical Society in Richmond. Michael Dickson and Nicholas Bishop, III were both present, on August 6, 1780 at the Battle of Hanging Rock in South Carolina. Observing it all was 13-year-old Andrew Jackson, who later said that he modeled his own fighting style after the brave men of Hanging Rock. Andy Jackson's brother Robert, aged 16, and was also in the battle.

Samuel Scott Scruggs spent the winter of 1777-1778 at Valley Forge, as a Private in General George Washington's Continental Army. Benjamin Peachee served in the 2nd New Jersey Regiment and fought in the Battle of Monmouth he was also present the night British Major John Andre was hanged as a spy Tappan, New York on October 2, 1780. Robert Douglass was present at the siege of Yorktown, in 1781, which effectively ended the American Revolutionary War. He also served as a teamster in the War of 1812. John Robert McVicker, and his father James McVicker were both in the Union Army during the American Civil War. Albea Scruggs and six of his brothers served in the Virginia Cavalry for the Confederacy during the same conflict.

We believe that the following direct ancestors are excellent examples of individuals and pioneer families who participated in the westward expansion of the United States during the 18th and 19th centuries.

Our great-grandfathers James Kerr, Nicholas Bishop, II and Jacob Christman are typical of the thousands Scotch-Irish and German pioneers who traveled the "Great Wagon Road" south from Pennsylvania through the Shenandoah Valley into Virginia and the Carolinas, prior to the American Revolution. In 1787, Robert Douglass, and his young family moved from Augusta County, Virginia to the upper part of East Tennessee. This event occurred before the state of Tennessee was even formed. They had come from the Virginia frontier,

moving down mountain valleys into this new region as the Indians moved out or even perhaps at times before. Our 6th great-grandparents Benjamin and Anna (Abbott) Peachee traveled the "Pennsylvannia Road" and the Ohio River during their migration from New Jersey to Kentucky around 1794. Our 3rd great-grandfather Asa Pinnell came to Maries County Missouri most likely between 1815 and 1818. It is most probable that he pushed other early settlers families hard for the honored place as the "first settler", and if he did not win the race, he undoubtedly ran a close second. George Moreland was born 1775 in Maryland. His restless nature kept him moving west throughout his long life. He died in Missouri in 1853. In between George and his wife Hannah produced 10 offspring and resided in South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Illinois, as well as Missouri. The family of our our 3rd great-grandparents William and Sarah (Douglass) Rhodes traveled via the "Old Spanish Trail" with the Turner-Duke wagon train to California in 1857. Along the way they narrowly missed being involved in the "Mountain Meadows Massacre" which occurred in Utah on September 11 of Our Rhodes family is listed among the pioneer families of Tulare County having arrived there as early as 1860.

NEWS OF INTEREST TO THE FAMILY HISTORIAN

Some "Good News" submitted by our Readers

The feature article in our previous issue of this newsletter dealt with the migration of our 4th great-grandfather Peter Pinnell, from South Carolina to Missouri. Part of this article spoke of Peter's early settlement in Missouri along the Meramac River and the resulting establishment of the nearby town named Sullivan. As a result Bill Pinnell sent us photographs of the monument in Sullivan recognizing the founders of this town. The following is part of the original article and the new photographs.

According to the history of Sullivan, Missouri, the area was founded in the early 1800's, by Stephen Sullivan who with his wife Dorcas had accompanied Daniel Boone on his return trip from Kentucky to secure settlers to populate lands around the Meramec River. Upon entering the area now known as the Meramec State Park, Boone remarked, "Sullivan, this is the region that I was telling you about. In these hills you will find copper, lead and game in abundance." It is doubtful that Stephen and Dorcas Pinnell Sullivan came with Daniel Boone to this area. It is more probable that it was Stephan's uncle also named Stephan Sullivan (1768-1857),who actually accompanied Boone from Kentucky in 1799. From historical records we see that this Stephan Sullivan was more of a contemporary to Daniel Boone and was in western Kentucky as early as 1799. Therefore it is most probable that the Pinnell/Sullivan family eventually settled on the Meramec River because of Daniel Boone's recommendation via Stephen Sullivan to his nephew Stephan, the son-in-law of our Peter Pinnell.

In 1830 Peter and Ann Pinnell were living in Meramec Township, then in Franklin County along with their son Lewis, daughter Mary "Polly" and her husband John Hyde, as well as Stephan and Dorcas Sullivan. When the railroad finally reached the homestead, now a tiny settlement, in 1858 Stephan and Dorcas donated their land for the depot grounds and Stephan built the depot himself. Soon a town that the railroad company appropriately named "Sullivan" was laid out.

Great Places To Look For Free Genealogy Records

Overwhelmed by the number of family history-related Web sites popping up? The folks at FamilyTreeMagazine, < http://tinyurl.com/re5ryu> have taken the time to sort through them to bring us the best. As a result they have recently identified the following worthwhile websites:

Daughters of the American Revolution
http://www.dar.org/ The recent addition of the DAR

Genealogical Research System (several interconnected databases that let you tap the DAR's background files on members' patriot ancestors) has thrust this former 101 honoree back onto the list. In addition to searching ancestors and members, you can find kin in a descendants database of more than 7 million individuals. An index of the Genealogical Research Committee books in the DAR Library covers another 20 million names, or you can search the entire DAR library catalog.

Find a Grave - http://www.findagrave.com/

If your dearly departed ancestor isn't represented in Find a Grave yet, just wait. It won't be long, with 43 million grave records and counting. Or browse by cemetery, to find an elusive ancestor by his or her "neighbors."

Google News Archive Search http://news.google.com/archivesearch

Plug in search terms, just as in the regular Google search, and this wicked-fast engine returns results from newspapers of all sorts, while also generating a nifty timeline. Not all the sites searched are free themselves, but results indicate the price, if any, so you can view free articles and abstracts first.

Access Genealogy - http://www.accessgenealogy.com/
In a decade online, this two-webmaster site has blossomed from a simple set of 50 state pages into more than 250,000 pages and millions of records. American Indian records remain its strong suit—including more than two dozen databases of tribal rolls—and it's worth a look for such varied additions as victims of the Johnstown Flood of 1889, pre-1799 Virginia wills, WWI honorees from Oregon, and 379,533 Southern California naturalizations from 1887 to 1940.

Interment.net - http://www.interment.net/

Covering not just the United States but also nations including Australia, Canada, Germany, Ireland, the United Kingdom and New Zealand, this site also boasts a daily RSS feed on newly added transcriptions plus a weekly blog.

DistantCousin.com - http://www.distantcousin.com/

Boasting more than 6 million records from more than 1,500 sources, this site is strongest on often overlooked resources such as city directories and school alumni lists. But it's also worth a check for vital records, military records, obituaries and stubborn surnames.

Newspaper Abstracts -

http://www.newspaperabstracts.com/

Before you pay for sites that put old newspapers online, check the more than 69,000 pages of abstracts and extracts from historical newspapers available here. Growing by more than a thousand pages a month, Newspaper Abstracts concentrates on the "good stuff," genealogically speaking, such as obituaries, births, marriages, deaths, court notices, land sales and tax notices.

Kip Sperry's Family History Internet Sites

Kip Sperry, has produced an absolutely exceptional "links" website. It's simple, direct, and includes the sites that Kip feels are the most important. For those unfamiliar with Kip, he teaches at BYU, and worked for years in management positions at the Family History Library. So he knows what's most important. Kip's site is broken down into a dozen categories.

They are: Blogs and Newsletters; Brigham Young University; FamilySearch; General; Libraries and Archives; Link Collections; Maps; Miscellaneous; Records; Societies and Organizations; Technology and Forms; and Tips. I'd advise bookmarking which is located at http://tinyurl.com/3koyddk.

Free genealogy search engine Mocavo.com launches

The world's largest free genealogy search engine, Mocavo.com, at http://mocavo.com/ launched recently, providing family historians access to free genealogy content on the web. As a result we've added this link button to our new and revised surname webpages.

Search engines like Google rank results by popularity, how recently the webpage was posted and how many times the webpage is linked to. But genealogy content may not be often linked to or refreshed regularly, so it may fall to the bottom of the rankings. Unlike other search engines, Mocavo.com's search results are indexed by people who chose exactly want the engine crawls. This allows users to tap into content that would be hard to find on Google.

Mocavo.com includes billions of names, dates and places worldwide, seeking to index all free online genealogy information. Rootsweb, Archive.org, Allen County Public Library, Library of Congress, National Archives, Ellis Island, Find A Grave, various U.S. state archives, and tens of thousands of genealogy sites built by individuals are already searchable through Mocavo.com.

"Mocavo.com has the capacity to index every single piece of free genealogy content found anywhere on the web, and will be growing by leaps and bounds in the coming months", said Cliff Shaw, the online genealogy heavyweight behind Mocavo.com, the Smart Matching algorithm, GenForum, GenCircles, Family Tree Legends and BackUpMyTree.com. "We expect Mocavo.com to shortly offer all of the web's free genealogy information, searchable and accessible to all - something that has never been done before."

Mocavo.com also crawls free message boards on Ancestry.com, but does not return results for premium content, like census images. Mocavo.com is working to index FamilySearch content.

Genealogy Addiction - A Poem

Found a distant cousin today She telephoned me right away Responding to my emailed plea She was joyous, just like me

Four generations back A family grew and disbursed Now we try to find them all Were they loved or cursed

Heard these stories all my life About the wars and immigration Settling across many states Genealogy, my lengthy compilation

A brick wall we came to in our search Who are the parents of Russell H. Jones Newly found cousin descended from a daughter I descend from his son

Mom says she always heard During famine from Wales they came Dark of hair and pale blue eyed Miners or farmers seeking same The coal mines of Pennsylvania would have been a natural draw for those who knew the trade Assuming too much however, can lead us totally astray We write the information down so it won't fade

Each newly found relative, descendants spread far and wide May add to our knowledge base or simply join in for the ride So far each is receptive and provide all they have Names and stories of places where families lived and died

Digging through every ten-year Census Sorting and reasoning and searching And like this week, a break, and newly-found cousins as I speak.....welcome aboard the addiction of the hunt.

RESEARCH CONNECTIONS

Since the first issue of this newsletter was created its distribution list has grown significantly. Along the way we have interacted with many genealogists that have expressed an interest in one or more of the family lines contained within our MMPS databases located at RootsWeb and Ancestry.com. Because networking is a key to the success of any family historian we feel that it is important for this newsletter to help in making that connection. As a result "Research Connections" has become part of every edition because we all realize the importance of a forum for researchers to reach out to others who may be working on the same family. Since most of the readers of this letter share several surnames in the aforementioned databases we believe that we would all benefit from the publishing of your significant "brick wall".
