EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

uring the four years that we have been publishing THE TULLIS TRACER we have been asked, over and over again, "why do we do it?" The answers are many fold; but it is basically a 'labor of love' to use an overworked phrase. True it is a great time consumer. It is certainly expensive. The physical results in the form of information received is a rewarding and motivating factor. But, our best reason is PEOPLE! Thru the TULLIS TRACER we have had the opportunity to meet some of the nicest people in America. Our correspondence is our greatest reward. Thru it we have established a huge family numbering in the hundreds. Most of 'our family' we know only via mail, which in no way lessens the relationship. Some of these people we have been privileged to meet in person. This leads us to the following brief story.

Recently, I was returning from San Francisco where I had spent the entire grueling day in Court representing my employer. I was hot, tired, and interested only in a quick, cooling swim, a good meal and a chance to review the days events. Further, I was slightly depressed knowing that the normal homecoming greeting I generally receive would be absent - Linda and our four daughters were attending a funeral some sixty miles south of us and wouldn't be home until late that evening.

As I stepped from my taxi, I was greeted by my neighbor and a stranger. The neighbor introduced me to Mr. Terry Tullis of Sussex, England. Terry and his charming wife Julie and thier two children, Christopher and Lindsay were on holiday in California and decided to stop by an visit us.

We had had correspondence with Terry and Julie and they had mentioned a possible holiday in California and time permitting a visit, But we did not expect it to really happen. What a delightful surprise!

At our suggestion, they spent the next three days with us, including touring the local points of interest and of course a trip to Disneyland. The children immediately became friends and left we adults alone while they did what teenagers normally do, while we enjoyed many hours of conversation and fellowship. Our relationship to Terry and Julie would have to be at least first cousins EIGHT TIMES REMOVED! But, then who counts? Family is family.

Terry is the son of Frank Tullis and the grandson of William Tullis, all of England. Admittedly, Terry knows little about the family, but is starting to look into it. We look forward to possibly publishing an article on the genealogy of our English cousins in the near future. We do definitely intend to publish an article on Terry and Julies recent adventure - they climbed Mount Huascarán in Peru this year. This mountain is 21,800 feet high, and is considered a very difficult technical climb. Not many Tullis's climb mountains as a hobby, so it should make interesting reading.

On the serious genealogical side of THE TULLIS TRACER, we are finding that we are rapidly running out of interesting, general articles on members of the Tullis family. We do not wish to publish straight genealogical articles, as they (although valuable) do not appeal to the vast majority of our readership. Less than one out of five are truly genealogically orientated. Therefore, if you have a possible article, please submitted it. We have also decided to publish current newspaper articles such as family re-unions, wedding stories, obituaries, and stories of general interest. Please forward any of these you think are worthy of re-printing. Thank you.

hese records came from various sources of information all located in Scotland. There are many more items referencing the TULLIS/TULLOS, etc family, but the dates are all after the 1730 mark where we first find the TULLIS family in America. We therefore have elected not to publish that information at this time. Hopefully, we will discover a link between the TULLIS family of New Jersey and the TULLIS' of Hilcarny and Fife, Scotland.

An effort is now being made to further research the records in Scotland in hopes of finding the immigrant ancestor of the American Tullis family.

Tullis Heads of Household - 1850

During the years we have done genealogical research we have come to realize that certain items are to be considered tools, not just references. Recently, one publisher has undertaken the monumental job of compiling a complete index to the 1850 Federal Census of this Country. The 1850 census was the first to list every member of the family and gave extensive information about the household itself. It also marks the rough 'mid-way' point in American history. Hence, it must be considered an invaluable tool to researchers.

Unfortunately, the multi-volume index is not without flaws. There have been several articles published on the problems encountered with these speedy indexes, however, we feel that inspite of occassional errors, over-sights, and the like, they are still one of the best things to happen to genealogy in a long time.

We have taken the time to go thru the entire 1850 index and list each Tullis found therein. Rather than list the indexes by the states as the indexes are compiled, we elected to place all the Tullis' in alphabetical order.
